

WASHINGTON WHISPERS

CPYRGHT

Vice Adm. William Raborn (Ret.) was picked by President Johnson to head the vast Central Intelligence Agency because Admiral Raborn is regarded as able and tough enough to get tight control of that agency and keep the President informed of the details of its operations. The CIA is reported to have become so secretive that even the White House had trouble finding out what was going on.

* * *